Treasures from the Crypt, Treasures on the Close

This May, the Cathedral opened our latest exhibition, Treasures from the Crypt, showcasing some of the finest pieces in our treasury. The objects on view include many precious items, ranging from a Mexican chalice from the mid-17th century, to a Restoration two-handled cup from 1640, to an alms basin given to the Cathedral by King George V.

For casual visitors to the Cathedral, these goblets and chalices, rings and dishes may capture attention by their beauty alone. For those who frequently attend worship services here, their utilitarian nature is perhaps more apparent. Each object has a specific function in the day-to-day life of the church.

These rarely-seen objects are part of the physical and spiritual heritage of the Cathedral, included in worship services, baptisms, ordinations, and consecrations: sacred events that mark the passage of the liturgical year and moments of great personal and spiritual importance. The work of artisans and metalworkers, jewelers and craftsmen enhances the grandeur of the Cathedral while providing the physical form required to carry out the duties of the church. The story here is one of elegance and utility both, the ideal union of practicality and artistry.

Some of the pieces in our treasury contain relics from congregants and neighbors who added their own family heirlooms to the Cathedral collection. Other donors include members of the royal family of England, Supreme Governors of the Church of England, as well as the descendants of Peter Stuyvesant, the Dutch director-general of New Netherland from 1647 until 1664, when it was renamed New York.

The pieces here tell a story of community and of the continuity of history from the origins of English Christianity, through the independence of the Episcopal Church, the founding of the City of New York, and the chartering of this Cathedral intended as a house of prayer for all people. But there are other treasures on the Cathedral Close, in addition to these objects made of precious metals and jewels.

Summer at the Cathedral is a joyous season, enriched each year by the return of our Adults and Children in Trust campers, each young person who attends our long-running ACT programme—whether for summer or school holiday camp, or our year-round after school activities—a jewel in their own right, adding their busyness and enthusiasm for the future to our community.

Each of the Cathedral Community Cares clients, who come each Sunday for breakfast and lunch, is also a beloved treasure. And besides the members of the Congregation of Saint Saviour, and all who come for worship services here, and indeed, each person who enters our doors, whether for a brief visit to replenish their spirit or an in-depth tour of our sacred space is counted among our most valuable assets.

Come explore Treasures from the Crypt on your next visit! And while you're here, know that you, too, are a treasure of the Cathedral.

This article was first published in the Cathedral's Fall 2001 newsletter.

A rare exhibit of St. John the Divine's "plate," the technical name for priceless objects used in the liturgical life of cathedrals, was the centerpiece of a festive evening arranged recently for the Cathedral's Regents. Founded in the 1980s, the Board of Regents is an association of those who provide financial support for the Cathedral's mission and programs through gifts of $1,000 or more per year. It meets at least two times each year, and usually features a presentation by noteworthy public figures.

At its gathering May 9th, the evening began with a brief but stirring service of invocations at which 16 new Regents were formally welcomed to membership by The Rt. Rev. Mark S. Silk, who became Bishop of New York upon the June 30th retirement of Bishop Richard R. Greve. The evening included a reception, a presentation about the objects on display, and a seated dinner in the sunset glow of the Chapel of St. Saviour.

Don Lundquist from the Cathedral's Arrangements Office assumed the role of docent for the evening and delivered a splendid presentation about the Treasury drawn from the encyclopedic knowledge he has amassed during his 25 years on the Cathedral's staff. On view for the first time in 15 years, the collection includes a variety of objects - crosses, candlesticks, patens, chalices and altars - and has evolved over the lifetime of the Cathedral. Its substantial size, explained Lundquist, is because in addition to the High Altar, St. John the Divine has 12 other altars in its chapels and bay windows, and each has been furnished with liturgical gifts over the years.

Because the breadth of the Treasury made it impossible to discuss each object in the limited time available, Lundquist sketched a brief picture of several of the most prominent works. These included:
1. The original cross and candlesticks for the High Altar donated by Levi Morton, New York Governor at the turn of the 20th century.
2. The Stuyvesant Bapstismal font, fashioned from silver gilt with precious stones and a hand-crafted lid presented by descendants of Peter Stuyvesant, Dutch governor of New York City when it was known as New Amsterdam.
3. The Cross of New York, the most prominent cross carried before the bishop in procession, donated by the Cathedral's Laymen's Club, it contains 200 ounces of silver, 30 ounces of gold, 102 diamonds as well as other precious stones, and required 1,500 hours to complete.
4. The Bishop's crozier, a 1923 gift from the Bishop of London to William Thomas Manning, Bishop of New York from 1921-1949. It is a replica of the 10th century crozier used by the Bishop of Winchester.
5. A carved mother of pearl baptismal shell used by Henry Codman Potter, Bishop of New York from 1887-1908.

Several lavish state gifts also grace the Treasury. These include the Great Hungarian Choir and two exceptional contributions from King George V of England: a solid silver two-handled loving cup, dated 1661, and a great alms dish, from Russia came an Orthodox reliquary from the Patriarch of Odessa, and a parangia (a pastoral crook) from the Patriarch of Russia to Bishop Manning, given as tokens of their ecclesiastical relationship.

Possession of the Treasury creates both material and theological paradigms for the Cathedral. The public's access to these great works is limited because of the absence of costly facilities required for their proper and secure display.

There is an additional question of why a great church should have so much plate when many of society's needs is unmet, even though the Cathedral has always been in the forefront of institutions reaching out to all segments of the community.

There are no easy answers to these hard questions, but Scripture offers guidance. In Exodus, God describes to Moses how the Tabernacle should be adorned. And the Cathedral gratefully assumes the obligation of stewardship for gifts it receives, whatever their form, just as Jesus did in accepting the sanctified oil poured on his feet by Mary Magdalene.
A number of new colleagues have joined the Cathedral over the past several months, and a number of longer term colleagues have transitioned into new roles. It’s our heartfelt pleasure to welcome and congratulate them!

Jennifer Gowers, Executive Director, Adults & Children in Trust
Jennifer, who earned her Doctorate in Education from Teachers College, Columbia University, is the new director of Adults and Children in Trust, taking over from ACT founder, Jose V. Torres. In preparation for this transition, Jose said, "I am delighted to see ACT move forward under the leadership of such a talented and insightful professional as Jennifer. I am committed and determined to help build upon its repertoire of skills and experiences in order to ensure an outstanding transition, successful outcomes and strong organizational growth in light of our Indie Vision mission." Most recently, Jennifer worked as managing director of literary at Ascend Learning, Brooklyn where she oversaw the development of Ascend’s K-12 Common Core-aligned English language arts curriculum, which incorporates both explicit teaching and inquiry learning.

Christopher Grandy, Assistant Director, Facilities
Chris joined the Cathedral in December of this past year on an interim basis. We’re pleased to have him here permanently! Chris comes to us with over 20 years’ worth of experience in facilities management, in both the public and private sectors. Chris says, “I was extremely excited to join the Cathedral family, I’ve met and worked with so many people who I admire and respect. I’d like to thank everyone for welcoming me into the family.”

The Rev. Dean Steven Lee, Pastor & Vicar
Steven Lee, known to many on the Cathedral Close, has been appointed Pastor & Vicar. In this role Steven will be working closely with the Congregation of St. Saviour and joining the Cathedral clergy as a full-time member of the vestry team. Steven grew up in Marin County, California and worked as a derivatives trader for a Swiss bank after graduating from Yale University. More recently he was awarded a Master of Divinity degree from General Theological Seminary and worked as the executive director of an immigration law services ministry of the United Methodist Church.

The Rev. Canon Patrick Malloy, Sub-Dean
Pat Malloy, who joined the Cathedral in the summer of 2016 as Canon, Liturgy & The Arts, has been appointed Sub-Dean. Pat came to the Cathedral from Denver, where he was Interim Dean, St. John’s Cathedral. He has taught at The General Theological Seminary, New York, where he was Professor of Liturgy, St. John’s University, Collegeville, the University of Santa Clara, California, and Duquesne University, Pittsburgh. In 2008-2009, Canon Malloy, then Rector of Grace Episcopal Church in Attenboro, PA, designed and was general contractor for the renovation of the church. For this work, he received an architecture design award in 2012 from the American Institute of Architects.

Jim Patterson, Director, Facilities and Capital Projects
Jim Patterson is another familiar face new transitioning into a new role at the Cathedral. Having worked on the Close for the last 20 years, he brings a deep and broad knowledge of the Close, our buildings, and historic preservation to this role. In his work with James R. Mitroff & Sons, Jim managed Cathedral renovation and construction projects, overseeing Mitroff’s best-in-class workmanship was used throughout. Jim is especially looking forward to deepening his relationship with the Facilities team, with whom he has worked closely over the course of his time here.

Wayne Pearson, Photographer in Residence
You may have seen Wayne Pearson in the Cathedral during special events over the past few years. We’re delighted to have him on board as a new Photographer in Residence. His photos will grace a forthcoming book about the Cathedral in the 20th century (on which more details will soon be available).

Jonathan Seccor, Director, Productions
Jonathan joined us in December of last year as Director, Cathedral Productions. Jonathan has worked as a production manager and a producer throughout the United States and Europe. He started his career as a stage manager in 1979 and has stage-managed hundreds of productions for Broadway, regional theater, opera, dance, film and television. Jonathan holds the position of Director, Performing Arts at MASS MoCA in North Adams, MA, from 1986 the year it opened through 2005, where he was responsible for the oversight of budget, staffing, and programming of 200+ annual events. Since then he helped found the Berkshire Cultural Resource Center and has worked with a range of organizations from the Mahowert Performing Arts Center in Great Barrington to the Urban Bush Women in Brooklyn.

Amanda Sidebothom, Manager, Productions
If you’re a regular visitor to the Cathedral, you’ve almost certainly been assisted in some way by Amanda Sidebothom, quite possibly without even knowing it! Amanda has been with the Cathedral for almost nine years, and in that time has kept things running smoothly in the Music, Liturgy & The Arts, and now Productions departments. Amanda, whose attention to detail is renowned, brings sophisticated knowledge of the workings of the Cathedral at large to Productions. A professional singer, Amanda has hands-on experience in the world of performance from both sides of the stage. She has performed internationally as well as across the United States, is adept at keeping multiple balls in the air, and has a deep curiosity about how things work.

Nicole Teodoro, Deacon in Residence
Nicole is another familiar face for many visitors to the Cathedral Close. In her work with the Honeybee Conservancy, she’s been a hands-on caretaker of the Cathedral’s Dovile Bees, tending them devotedly for the past several years, steering them through outbreaks of colony collapse and fine honey harvests alike. An excerpt from an interview with Nicole is featured on the back page of this issue; be sure to check out our blog at stlphildivine.org/news/blog for more!

Looking Back

As has become almost commonplace these past couple of years, the season got off to a decidedly unseasonal start. Fluctuations in the weather aside, spring finally blossomed into a gorgeous season of beauty. Our Great Music in a Great Space series brought an array of performances to the Cathedral, student four groups were a constant presence, with choir sings abounding, and the Easter holidays inspired solemn and joyous acts of devotion, both private and in the fullness of our community.

The Cathedral hosted a diner for the Coalition of Immokalee Workers on March 15, the culminating evening following a weeklong fast the workers undertook in an effort to move the needle on farmers’ rights. The CFW, a farmworker-owned group of activists, educators, and everyday workers, used this fast to call upon the fast-food chain Wendy’s to join the CFW’s Fair Food Program, a social responsibility initiative designed by farmworkers that has finally put an end to the harassment and assault for tens of thousands of workers by harassing the purchasing power of more than a dozen of the world’s largest retail food companies.

On March 20, GMGS presented Arvo Pärt’s Missa brevis, with additional works by Igor Strawinsky and Zoltan Kodály. Kent Tritle, Director of Cathedral Music, conducted.

Holy Week, which began March 25, is always one of the finest points in the Cathedral’s year. The scent of incense fills the space, and friends and congregants gather to observe the joyful mysteries leading to Easter Day. This Lent, Artist in Residence David Briggs provided a fitting musical interlude just prior to Easter, with improvisation on the Stations of the Cross on the Great Organ. The annual reading of selections from The Infirmo of Dante Alighieri is always a highly anticipated event during spring each year, followed by the American Pasts Center scholars, and Dante readers both old and new came together for the all-reading, which, in a tradition inaugurated last year, concluded with the final stanza from Dante’s Paradise. We look forward to next year, marking the 200th anniversary of the Infirmo reading at the Cathedral.

The final Great Choir performance of this year’s GMGS season, Immigrants — A Celebration of What Makes New York Great, reunited the Cathedral Choir with Rise of the Compass, the noted world music ensemble, for a concert spotlighting Cathedral and city history on April 5. The concert culminated in the world premieres of Robert Stets’s Immigrant Songs, on a libretto by the Reverend Canon Victoria Sinela, celebrating New York’s identity as a melting pot of humanity.

The Choristers of St. Paul’s Cathedral, London, joined us for a special Choral Evensong on April 22. Their visit, in celebration of the 60th anniversary of the dedication of the American Cathedral Chapel in St. Paul’s Cathedral, marks the second time we’ve welcomed this prestigious choir they first visited America in 1953, performing 41 concerts, starting at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine and closing two months later at Carnegie Hall. In the spirit of ongoing cross-cultural camaraderie, St. Paul’s Cathedral will host the choristers of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine for a residence in the summer of 2019.

We couldn’t have chosen a better day than May 5 for the 20th annual Blessing of the Bicycles. The Cathedral hosted bikers, riders, bicyclists, race spectators, and many more. At received a special blessing from the Reverend Canon Patrick Madly—the perfect start to the cycling season.

On May 9, the Cathedral was pleased to co-present Tristan Perich, Dritt Mutojy, part of this year’s Red Bull Music Festival. Perich’s contemporary compositions utilise full electronic instruments in traditional instruments, and the music was particularly thrilling in the vast acoustic space of the Cathedral. The performance opened with a new work by Leda Flanigan, the experimental electronic musician and instrument designer. Flanigan takes a sculptural approach to sound design, layering the sounds of his self-built devices with traditional instrumentation, including her voice.

Beginning May 12, the Cathedral and our resident Congregation of Saint Saviour honored those who died during the AIDS epidemic with the display of three panels of the NAMES Project AIDS Memorial Quilt in the News. The memorial quilt, first unveiled in 1987 by activist Cleve Jones, is one of this country’s most profound symbols of the devastation caused by AIDS, incorporating more than 48,000 panels, each honoring an individual who died of the disease. As many of our friends know, the Cathedral was one of the first houses of worship in New York City to respond to the AIDS crisis in the 1980s, and is the home of the National AIDS Memorial Book of Remembrance. On May 20, members of the Congregation continued the fight against AIDS, joining thousands of fellow New Yorkers to cheer on the marchers in this year’s AIDS Walk NYC for the culminating event of the past week’s quilt display.

A Liturgy of Lamentation on May 17 brought the Cathedral and Diocesan communities together in recognition of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.’s legacy, and acknowledge the ongoing work of repentance, reparation, and reconciliation.

The Spirit of the City Gate, on May 23, gave us another opportunity to celebrate the Cathedral’s 125th birthday. Read on for this issue for more information on this year’s event. We were particularly excited by the contributions of the Bowery Boys, hosts of the nameless podcast on NYC history, who hosted the Spirit after party with guests hosted the Duke Ellington Legacy Band into the night.

The New York Philharmonic’s Memorial Day Concert caps off the spring season each year, bringing us into the soft, warm days of summer. This year’s performance featured our own Kent Tritle on the Great Organ—a fitting prelude to the organ recital and choral concerts soon to follow, as summer turns to fall and the Cathedral’s program season swings back into full force.
The Cathedral Invites You to Take a Pause to Consider the Fight Against AIDS

In June of 1987, a small group of strangers gathered in a San Francisco storefront to document the lives they feared history would neglect. Their goal was to create a memorial for those who had died of AIDS, and to thereby help people understand the devastating impact of the disease. This meeting of devoted friends and lovers served as the foundation of the NAMES Project AIDS Memorial Quilt.

The Quilt was conceived in November of 1985 by long-time San Francisco gay rights activist Cleve Jones, who helped organize the annual candlelight march honoring Harvey Milk and Mayor George Moscone. At the end of the 1985 march, Jones and others stood on ladders taping placards bearing the names of friends and loved ones who had died of AIDS to the walls of the San Francisco Federal Building. The wall of names looked like a patchwork quilt.

On October 11, 1987, The Quilt included 1,920 panels and was displayed for the first time on the National Mall in Washington, D.C. during the National March on Washington for Lesbian and Gay Rights. The Quilt returned to Washington, D.C. in October of 1988, when 8,288 panels were displayed on the Ellipse in front of the White House.

The entire Quilt was again displayed on the National Mall in 1992 and 1996, when it contained approximately 37,440 individual panels.

The Quilt was nominated for a Nobel Peace Prize in 1989, and is today the largest community art project in the world. The Quilt has been the subject of countless books, films, scholarly papers, articles, and theatrical, artistic and musical performances.

“Common Threads: Stories From The Quilt” won the Academy Award as the best feature-length documentary film of 1989.

Three panels from the AIDS Memorial Quilt have been on view at the Cathedral since early May of this year. Many of the people in our community were—and continue to be—affected by the AIDS epidemic and its legacy of loss. It’s our heartfelt desire to continue the fight against the disease; to uplift our friends and family living with HIV; and to cherish and respect the memories of those in our communities who passed away.

Summer 2018 at the Cathedral

Staff Spotlight on Nicole Toutounji

The following is excerpted from an interview published on the Cathedral's website. To read the full article, visit stjohnandlom.org/blog.

Names: Nicole Toutounji
Title: Beekeeper in Residence
Neighborhood you live in: Upper West Side
Length of time with the Cathedral: 6 years
What’s your typical day at the Cathedral like?
I usually visit the two bee hives once a week, often with a beekeeper friend. Our main concern is that bees are in good health, which requires constant vigilance and care. We open the hives and smoke the bees to pacify them. This allows us to go deep into the hives and check that the queen is laying eggs, that capped brood is abundant, and that the bees are assuming their many roles, such as housekeeper, nursemaid, construction worker, guard and bringing pollen and nectar into the hive. Once reassured all is well, we take a moment to watch and admire the fabulous Divine bees’ constant work before confirming we are in full compliance with New York City Health Department rules and regulations, like having a water source available by the hives. It is such a privilege to be keep a bee on the Cloisters.

What is your favorite item in the Cathedral or on its grounds?
My favorite place is the Chapel of St. Ambrose, St. Ambrose is the patron saint of bees and beekeepers. There is a legend that as an infant, a swarm of bees settled on his face while he lay in his cradle, leaving behind a drop of honey. His father considered this a sign of his future eloquence and honeyed tongue.

What’s the best piece of advice you’ve ever received?
I love the motto of my school: The Convent of the Sacred Heart: “Your example, even more than your words, will be an eloquent lesson to the world.”

The 79th General Convention of the Episcopal Church

The General Convention, which meets every three years, is the governing body of the Episcopal Church. It is made up of the House of Deputies, composed of laypeople, deacons and priests, and the House of Bishops, composed of bishops and episcopal visitors from each diocese. During its biennial meetings, deputies and bishops consider a wide range of important matters facing the Church. In the interim between biennial meetings, various committees, commissions, agencies, boards and task forces created by the General Convention meet to implement the decisions and carry on the work of the General Convention.

The 2018 General Convention, which attracts over 10,000 participants, is being held in Austin, Texas from July 9—13, and the Cathedral is looking forward to taking part on multiple levels.

The Rt. Rev. Gilton Daniel III, Dean, will attend the House of Bishops, where he sits on the Executive Committee of the Episcopal Church. He is also planning to spend time at the Cathedral booths in the Exhibition Hall. The Rev. Canon Patrick Malloy will be attending committee meetings and also hoping to meet participants from the vantage point of the Cathedral booths. Joining Dean Daniel and Canon Malloy are members of the departments of Programming & External Relations and Public Education and Visitor Services, including Lisa Schubert, Rebecca Merrill, Mia Michelsen Bartlett, and Adriana Wilkensiedl.

If you will be in Austin, please stop by Booth 101 to introduce yourself, learn more about the Cathedral, and celebrate the convention.

Spirit of the City: Celebrating the Cathedral’s Birthday

This year’s Spirit of the City gala, on May 23, brought out the best in our Cathedral community. What better way to celebrate the Cathedral’s 125th anniversary than by throwing a birthday party? Dinner in the Chapel of the Teens was followed by stories, dessert and dancing to the Duke Ellington Legacy Band. This year’s gala was made extra-special by a collaboration with the Bowery Boys, hosts of the famous podcast all about NYC history. They hosted the after party, featuring signature cocktails, Cathedral-themed photo booths, and tours to the rooftop for moonlit views over Morningside Heights.

Join us next year for the 38th annual Spirit of the City... and for the next 125 years to come!
