The Cathedral Gives Back

or where your treasure is, there your heart will be also.” The Right Reverend Dan Daniel quoted Jesus’s Sermon on the Mount when asked about the Cathedral’s commitment to tithing. Typically seen as a way for people of faith to give back to the church, Dean Daniel takes the tradition a step further, viewing it as a sacred obligation for the Cathedral to give back to the community.

"When I balance my checkbook at the end of the month, I can see very clearly what my priorities are and if my actions are living up to my values," Dean Daniel said. "The same is true of the Cathedral. I want to be able to do more than just talk about the things we believe in here, but also show our beliefs in action. We do this through our programs—Cathedral Community Cares, Adults and Children in Trust, and the myriad of events that help underserved populations, but also through donating to causes that we believe in."

The Cathedral has a long tradition of social outreach and commitment to community. Cathedral Community Cares (CCC) works to combat and alleviate poverty through preventive poverty services, education and advocacy—specifically targeting the issues of health and hunger. CCC tackles these problems on multiple fronts by addressing the immediate and beyond-emergency needs of the underserved, while seeking long-term policy solutions that will benefit both clients and the greater community.

CCC, with the help of 30 volunteers, hosts a Sunday soup kitchen that serves breakfast and lunch to over 600 people a month. Twice a week, CCC operates a clothing closet, helping provide clothes to people needing emergency assistance and for those looking to return to the workplace. This program is also assisted by volunteers, and all the clothes distributed have been donated by members of the Cathedral community. (Clothes can be donated in person, and anyone interested in volunteering for CCC is encouraged to email ccc@stjohndivine.org.)

The Cathedral’s commitment to our preschool, afterschool, and summer camp programs through Adults and Children in Trust (ACT) is also a contemporary extension of the Cathedral’s tithing in practice. By providing quality and affordable activities for neighborhood families, we are proud to use our space and resources to give back to this community.

The idea of tithing originates in the Book of Genesis, when, after winning a military battle and rescuing his nephew Lot, Abraham thanks God by giving the church one-tenth of all he owns. This initial conception of tithing makes it clear that it’s not just about money, but rather a way to look at all of the possessions and material wealth in our lives and figure out what we are able to give back. And indeed, original tithe is a gift of gratitude for all we have been given.

In addition to our own programs, the Cathedral has also long partnered with other mission-aligned community organizations to support their work, something Dean Daniel wants to continue to emphasize in our public programs. Longtime readers of this newsletter will recall the Cathedral’s collaboration with Broadway Cares/Equity Fights AIDS to produce staged readings of Joan Didion’s haunting A Year of Magical Thinking and Blue Nights, the proceeds from which benefited UNICEF and The United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East. Our Enter the Conversation series has frequently drawn partners from across the spectrum of nonprofit community and policy-making organizations. More recently, the Cathedral donated portions of our offerings from St. Francis Day and UN Sunday to several animal welfare and environmental organizations, each of them doing work that aligns with our mission and values. We do this in the original spirit of the tithe—as a gift of gratitude for all we have been given.

While titling is still tied to the rule of ten percent, present-day understandings look to this as a positive challenge rather than a strict requirement, one that has translated into many other aspects of our lives. Many of us set up automatic, recurring donations to nonprofits we choose to support. We volunteer our time at institutions that we believe are deserving of it. We donate our old clothes and books to places that will reuse them for the public good. When it comes down to it, people of faith look at their budget, and instead of asking what can I give? at the Cathedral, we are committed to doing the same.
Presenting… the New Peacock Hutch!

On October 18, a delegation of VIPs—comprising preschoolers from Adults and Children and Trust accompanied by students from the Cathedral School—joined Cathedral clergy and staff, architects, veterinary experts, and a hooping helping of reporters from various New York City media outlets to celebrate the unveiling of the long-awaited new peacock hutch. Peacocks Phil, Jim, and Harry mostly avoided the hubbub, but the day went off without a hitch. Following remarks from the Right Reverend Clifton Daniel, Dean of the Cathedral, and representatives from Ennead Architects and the Brodsky Organization, the new hutch, designed by Ryan Lewandowski and Paul Scrugham, received a vigorous blessing by the Right Reverend Andrew ML Dietsche, Bishop of the Diocese of New York. The new hutch, thoroughly blessed (along with the delighted schoolchildren), is now open for business. We expect to see our peacock trio settling in over the next few months.

Dean's Meditation

THE RIGHT REVEREND CLIFTON DANIEL III

I write this on All Saints Day, about a month away from the first Sunday of Advent. The Christmas season and Epiphany will follow quickly.

All three of these seasons of the Church year point our thoughts and prayers toward the coming of the Messiah. Beyond, they point to the fulfillment of God's intentions and designs for the human race and all of creation—past, present and future.

Jesus speaks in the Gospels of the signs of the fulfillment of God's reign. According to Jesus, there will be many signs. Some will signal indeed be precursors of God's reign; but others will be distractions.

Distractions are all about us. An economic system that is too enamored of corporate greed and exploitation that led in 2008 to the near collapse of our economy; an economy that promises more for some but drains care for those who need it the most. A health care system that works for the few and ignores the rest. A nation of incredible abundance and wealth also sustains incredible poverty and starvation.

Then, the distraction of political life in this nation frozen by ideology, a lack of compromise and a leader who is crude, bullying, frightening and a distinct threat to our nation's ideals and traditions.

Our present day is filled with distractions. All these signs point to promises broken and ideals cast aside. Advent, as the Dean of Virginia Theological Seminary Ian Markham has said, is “…the political season of the Church Year. It is the season that draws our attention both to God's promises of fulfillment and restoration as well as to the unfulfilled promises in the present.”

Advent's call is to see the signs and distractions of the present day while keeping an eye on God's future and how God's future is being realized.

Advent calls us to consider God's politics. God's politics, at least as I read the Biblical witness, are all about God's preferential option for the poor, the weak, the refugee, the outsider. In this world filled with visions of material wealth and power over others, God's agenda makes its appearance—calling for the poor, serving the outsider, welcoming the refugees, resisting oppression, overcoming prejudice and reconciling brokenness.

The Advent politics of God are contrary to our world's addiction to exploitation of others, greed, oppression and self-serving pursuit of power.

Advent's call is to see the signs and distractions of the present day while keeping an eye on God's future and how God's future is being realized. We must choose to include God's politics in our daily lives.

Crafts at the Cathedral

INTERVIEW WITH MARSHA RA

The Congregation of St. Saviour, founded in 1992, enlivens the winter season each year with Crafts at the Cathedral. Typically held in Synod Hall, this year's fair expanded into the heart of the Cathedral itself. Margaret Diehl sat down with Marsha Ra, organizer of the craft fair, to talk about its origins and its evolution.

MD: Could you tell me how the craft fair got started?
MR: The Congregation was about two years old, and we were looking for ways to make money, and also to show what wonderful members we had—including a lot of artists. But none of them were the least bit interested! So we went back to the drawing board and came up with the idea of having a craft show. I went to the American Craft Council and they had a drawing board and came up with the idea of having a craft show.

Exhibitors get very upset about that. The people who come and to take part in American craft shows do everything by hand. The jury screens the applications, looking for craftsmanship, originality and quality. We especially try to represent a wide range of crafts and arts, including textiles, jewelry, wood, ceramics, glass, watercolors, etc.

There are some exhibitors who have other careers, and they only do a couple of shows a year. There are some that are in the neighborhood who only do our show. One jeweler takes part in 40 shows a year.

Some of our exhibitors do very well. Sometimes I’m almost surprised by how well they do! There’s a craftsman who lives in Vermont who makes exquisite spoons. He goes in the woods where he finds interesting pieces of wood from which he makes his spoons. They’re very interesting and lovely. Collectors come from all over to purchase them. He tells me he regularly makes $6,000 or $7,000 at our show.

MC: Has anyone really made it big?
MC: Yumiko Kuga, a ceramist, is one of our most successful exhibitors—her work is shown in museums. Her pots have organic shapes that are textured in a wide range of earthen tones. They evoke images of the nature and are a celebration of life.

Tell me about the change from Synod Hall to the Cathedral.

Because of planned renovations, we could not hold the craft fair last year. Initially the Cathedral suggested we do the fair over the summer, but due to our planning cycle, which starts almost immediately after each fair closes, it just was not possible. Crafts at the Cathedral has been held in Synod Hall almost every year since we started, and while Synod has a warm feeling, we have actually outgrown it.

We were disappointed about cancelling last year's fair, when Dean Kowalski suggested—as part of the 125th anniversary celebrations—that we do it in the Cathedral. My first response was, “Oh my God, that could be terrifying!” I’m a convert—I think of myself as a “church lady,” and my first thought was, “You can’t do that.” But everybody around me told me I was crazy and I started to think about all the stuff that goes on in the Cathedral. So much happens here beyond daily worship services—so much life goes on inside the building. So we sent out our prospectus and got more responses than ever. I think people were excited about showing in the Cathedral. One of the things I love—and this year it’s even better—is that all the Cathedral departments are so supportive. I feel so lucky and I really appreciate all that they’re doing. I’m not nervous this year, maybe for the first time. I just feel like, “Wow, this is going to be great. Look at all the work other people are putting in!” It may be difficult for us to return to Synod Hall next year.

How much bigger is this year’s fair?

It’s going to include 85 exhibitors; the most we had ever had before was 55. We will have many new and enticing crafts. I am delighted that an artist who makes jams will be with us. Although he has applied in the past, I didn’t feel we had room for him before. I am delighted that an artist who makes jams will be with us.

Great Music in a Great Space
CHRISTMAS CONCERT: NYE CONCERT FOR PEACE
Winter brings some of our most anticipated concerts of the Great Music in a Great Space season. Join us December 9 for our Christmas Concert, a beloved Cathedral tradition. The stunning Cathedral Choir is enhanced by the Choristers as they perform Bernstein’s Mass, conducted by Bryan Zaros. Then the Cathedral Chorale joins in for Vivaldi’s Gloria and other holiday favorites, led by Kent Tritle.

Our New Year’s Eve Concert will be extra special this year! Always a stirring performance, this year sees the U.S. premiere of Lucas Wiegmans’s Suite, “The Wretched Strangers.” Selections from Leonard Bernstein’s Mass celebrate Bernstein’s centennial and honor him as the founder of this very concert. Come ring in the new year with the Cathedral Choir and Orchestra and special guests Judy Collins, Jason Robert Brown, and Harry Smith.

Our season continues in the new year with back-to-back organ recitals. Artist in Residence David Briggs performs on January 16, and Kent Tritle on February 6—both are acclaimed maestros of the instrument. As we look forward to spring, March welcomes back Musica Sacra and showcases our own Cathedral Choir performing Arvo Pärt’s Miserere. Finally, join us in April as Rose of the Compass helps wrap up our season with a tribute to refugees and immigrants.

The American Poets Corner: Winter
From the Four Seasons of the Year

Cold, moist, young Peggy winter now doth lye
In swaddling Clouts, like new born Infancy
Bound up with frosts, and furr’d with hail & snows,
And like an infant, still it taller grows;
December is my first, and now the Sun
To th’Southward Tropic, his swift race doth run:
This month he’s bound in harned Capricorn,
From thence he’s gone to lengthen the shortest mom,
Through Christendome with great Feastivity,
Now’s the time, (but ghostly for blast Navity.
Cold frozen January next comes in,
Chilling the blood and shrinking up the skin;
And like an Infant, still it taller grows;
In Aquarius now keeps the long wisht Sun,
And Northward his unwearied Course doth run:
And Travellers their noses sometimes leese.
Then the Sun, in his unwearied Course doth run:
And Travellers their noses sometimes leese.
Now Toes and Ears, and Fingers often freeze,
And some warm glances from his face are felt;
The Rivers ‘gin to ope, the snows to melt,
And like an Infant, still it taller grows;
And Northward his unwearied Course doth run:
In Aquarius now keeps the long wisht Sun,
Chilling the blood and shrinking up the skin;
Cold frozen January next comes in,
To th’Southward Tropic, his swift race doth run:

Fall is when the Cathedral’s public programs—special events, informative workshops, and breathtaking concerts—kick into high gear, and 2017 proved no exception to that rule.

The office of the Interim Vicar and Pastor of the Congregation of St. Saviour launched a series of Know Your Rights workshops this fall, aimed at providing an arsenal of tools to navigate life as an immigrant of any legal status. Command of multiple languages is a particularly powerful tool, both for immigrants and for communities and parishes supporting them, and a series of free English and Spanish classes, offered on Tuesday afternoons throughout the season, added to the robust offerings flowing from the Cathedral.

Continuing the focus on social justice, the Cathedral was pleased to host noted activist Ruby Neil Sales during September 10’s Choral Eucharist. Ms. Sales delivered a stirring talk on the legacy of white supremacy in this country, a source of profound violence she experienced firsthand. As a young girl of 17, she participated in the Selma-Montgomery marches of 1965. During a deadly attack by white supremacists, Ms. Sales’ life was saved by a young Episcopal seminarian, whose self-sacrifice went on to shape the course of her future life, inspiring her to attend theological school and continue to advocate for human rights.

The Mettawee River Theatre Company returned to the Close this September with Before the Sun and Moon, a production based around ancient Korean folktales and incorporating Mettawee’s signature range of masks, puppets and other visual elements.

September also brings Cathedral School children back to the Close each year; the School convocation on September 14 welcomed new and established families into the heart of the Cathedral.

September 17, U.N. Sunday, spotlight one of the Cathedral’s finest traditions: providing a grand space for the important civic dialogues of our times. The Cathedral honors the mission of the United Nations each year with this special service. The Honorable Miroslav Lajčák, President of the 72nd Session of the U.N. General Assembly, spoke. October 1 marked another spectacular Feast of St. Francis and Blessing of the Animals. The St. Francis Day events require an enormous amount of work involving many Cathedral departments, with last-minute scheduling, rehearsals, deliveries, delays, and often an unexpected issue with one of our animal guests. But as always, staff went above and beyond, and the resulting service, performances and fair celebrated the intricate shapes life takes within the vastness of divine love. The Missa Gaia (Earth Mass), composed by Paul Winter and Paul Halley, brought together a massed choir of hundreds of voices under the direction of Kent Tritle. Highlights included gospel singer Theresa Thomason, dance by Forces of Nature, and musical performances by the Paul Winter Consort and the Cathedral Choir. The service concluded with the world famous and beloved Procession of the Animals.

Autumn has seen a far greater than average—and far more destructive—number of hurricanes and tropical storms in the southern United States and Caribbean. As of the time of writing, communities in Puerto Rico are still reeling from the devastation unleashed by Hurricane Maria. In light of these disasters, and the innumerable ways our New York City communities are connected to those in the affected regions, the Diocese of New York organized a hurricane relief service on October 7. All funds raised during the collection will go to assist rebuilding efforts.

October 18 brought the long-awaited dedication of the new peacock hutch (SEE ARTICLE)—finally, Phil, Jim, and Harry have a home as aesthetically pleasing as the birds themselves!

The first Great Music in a Great Space concert of the 2017–18 season, held on October 25, was also our first with Musica Sacra as a full GMGS partner. The concert featured the music of Schütz, Bach, Brahms, and Bruckner, conducted by our own Kent Tritle, Director of Cathedral Music.

The Annual Halloween Extravaganza, on October 27, with Ralph Lee’s Procession of the Ghouls, delighted children and adults and signaled the divide between the colorful and mostly warm first half of autumn and the colder, darker months that commence the holiday season. Continuing the spooky, seasonal mood, Crypt Crawls invited children into the Cathedral’s crypt to hear stories and learn the history of Halloween.

This summer, organist David Briggs was appointed as a new artist in Residence by the Cathedral, and his first recital, on November 3—performing his own organ transcription of Edward Elgar’s deeply moving First Symphony—did not disappoint. Briggs will continue to join us throughout the season, bringing the Great Organ to life during services and post-Evensong recitals.

The 241st Convention of the Episcopal Diocese of New York, held at the Cathedral on November 11, reaffirmed our connection to the wider Diocesan community, and the Diocesan community’s focus on recognizing and working to alleviate suffering throughout the United States and abroad—suffering that, in many regards, feels particularly magnified by the intense social conflicts revealed by the 2016 election, by natural disasters around the globe, and by the continuing threat of unaddressed climate change.

On November 12, the Cathedral and the Cathedral Poet in Residence Marilyn Nelson welcomed attendees to the Poets Corner induction of Joan Toomer, whose nuanced, modern approach to themes of race in America continues to resonate for students of the Harlem Renaissance and the American novel. Almost a hundred years have passed since Toomer published Cane, the novel that has come to be regarded as his masterwork. Yet, in looking back over the events of the past few months, perhaps we all could stand to learn from his unflinching focus on the vulnerable and underserved, and his uncompromising refusal to allow colorism and ingrained racism to direct the course of his life.

As we leave the fall season behind and enter into another winter on the Close, we experienced the joys of Crafts at the Cathedral, this year held under the roof of the Nave! For a behind-the-scenes view of all the planning that goes into organizing the Congregation of St. Saviour’s annual fair, read the interview with Marsha Ra in this issue—and don’t forget to check the calendar section for more details.
Crafts at the Cathedral (SEE ARTICLE) ushers in the holiday season each year, bridging as it does the end of November and beginning of December. Christmastime follows quickly on its heels: this year’s annual Cathedral Christmas Concert falls on December 9. The Cathedral Choiristers, joined by the soprano and alto voices of the Cathedral Choir, will sing Benjamin Britten’s exquisite setting of medieval poetry, the Ceremony of Carols. The Cathedral Chorale and Orchestra join for Vivaldi’s splendid and festive Gloria, while New York composer James Bassi’s radiant Quem pastores laudavere portrays the quiet beauty of the Christmas story. As always, the whole audience is warmly invited to join in singing favorite Christmas carols, led by the choirs and orchestra.

While you’re at the Cathedral, take a look at the Peace Tree, decorated by Cathedral School students. The origami cranes decorating the tree harken back to Japanese traditions, reflecting our most fervent wish: for peace and harmony in our neighborhoods, city, and worldwide community.

On December 10, 17 and 25, Early Music New York returns to the Cathedral with Burgundian Christmas: Renaissance in the Low Countries. The series of concerts, held in the Cathedral’s Chapel of St. James, presents sacred and secular Renaissance holiday motets and carols for voices and instruments.

Paul Winter’s 38th Annual Winter Solstice Celebration, featuring The Paul Winter Consort and the 25 dancers and drummers of the Forces of Nature Dance Theatre, will take place December 14, 15 and 16. A dazzling extravaganza of music and dance, these performances offer a contemporary take on ancient solstice rituals, when people gathered together on the longest night of the year to welcome the return of the sun and the birth of the new year.

On December 24, Christmas Eve Lessons and Carols features the Cathedral Choiristers under the direction of Kent Tritle and Associate Choirmaster Bryan Zaros. This family-friendly service uses readings, carols and larger-than-life puppets to tell the Christmas story.

The Christmas Eve Festal Eucharist begins with a musical prelude at 10 pm and service at 10:30 pm. The Bishop of New York, The Right Reverend Andrew ML Dietsche, celebrates the Eucharist and preaches. Special guests Paul Winter and Susanna Phillips join to celebrate the Christmas spirit. This service is open to all, and passes are not needed to attend—there is plenty of seating available!

Founded by Leonard Bernstein in 1984, the annual New Year’s Eve Concert for Peace, December 31, is a signature Cathedral event, gathering old friends and new for more than 30 years. This year’s concert begins with Joseph Haydn’s Te Deum, and features the U.S. premiere of See the Wretched Strangers by composer Lucas Wiegnink. 2017 is the centennial of Bernstein’s birth, so this year we include a special celebration of the concert’s founder by performing chorales from Leonard Bernstein’s own Mass.

Nightwatch Crossroads overnights continue throughout the winter season, welcoming spiritually-minded tweens and teens into this majestic space and challenging them to expand their understanding of faith traditions both Christian and non. A special College Night edition, on January 5, expands that invitation to slightly older students, while retaining the hospitality and intellectual stimulation Crossroads has long offered to younger seekers.

On January 11, the Cathedral is pleased to present an unusual combination of modern dance, poetry, and music, with a performance of Ned O’Gorman’s The Buzzard and the Peacock. Details were still coming together at the time of writing, so visit our website for more details!

January 14 is Martin Luther King Sunday. The 11 am service, in commemoration of the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., will include readings from his speeches and other writings as well as musical selections curated by Director of Music Kent Tritle. Following the service, join us for a communal Spiritual Sing led by Alice Parker, director of Melodious Accord. Parker frequently leads communal sings, workshops, and intensive professional training programs for composers, teachers, and conductors. Of Parker’s work as a leader of group song, one observer remarked, “There is no one who is not a singer when she leads.”

On January 16, Artist in Residence David Briggs returns to the Great Organ with his celebrated 1998 transcription of Gustav Mahler’s Fifth Symphony. Mahler stated that “a symphony must be like the whole world—it must contain everything.” Since our Cathedral itself is large, containing multitudes (to paraphrase Walt Whitman, inducted into the Poets Corner in 1984), this performance seems particularly apt.

The Diocesan Chorister Festival, on January 27, brings together young singers from throughout the Diocese and beyond for an exciting day of rehearsals, workshops, games and tours. The day will culminate in a festive Evanescence featuring the combined choirs led by Bryan Zaros, Assistant Director of Music Raymond Nagem, and Amaranta Viera.

The Feast of Absalom Jones, on February 10 this year, is always a celebratory day at the Cathedral: congregants and musical groups from the Diocese will again fill this grand space, honoring the life of Absalom Jones, abolitionist and clergyman (and the first African-American person ordained as a priest in the Episcopal Church).

Ash Wednesday, coinciding with Valentine’s Day this year, is observed at the Cathedral with spoken and sung services. Join us as we usher in the season of Lent with solemn and stirring music sung by the Cathedral Choir and Chorale at the afternoon and evening services.
This has been a year when we, as a nation, have had to think hard about what we can and should do for others. Whether those others are undocumented people; DREAMers; victims of racism, sexism, hurricanes or wildfires—the politics and natural disasters of 2017 have sent us careening through differing perspectives on what it means to be one people.

At the Cathedral, we think about this every day and work on it year after year. Our frustration is that we never give as much as is needed; even as New York City, like the whole of America, grows richer, those on the bottom rungs of society lose more and need not only material help but the love, faith and belief in community that the Cathedral has always nurtured.

It is in this spirit that we ask, as we do every year, that if you make charitable contributions at the end of the year, you remember the Cathedral. Please take a moment to think about Cathedral Community Cares (CCC) Soup Kitchen & Clothing Closet, which also offers social and medical services; Adults and Children in Trust (ACT) with its myriad of summer, pre-school and after-school programs; Friends of Music, which supports the Cathedral choral and organ concerts; the American Poets Corner, celebrating the best in our nation’s literature; the Textile Conservation Lab, conserving precious textiles, including Cathedral tapestries damaged in the 2001 fire; and our beautiful gardens, managed by the Cathedral Gardens Conservancy.

The Cathedral also needs volunteers, for assistance with the liturgy, pitching in at ACT, CCC, and The Cathedral School, greeting people at the door, leading guided visits and working in the garden. Whatever your interests and skills, there is room and a warm welcome for you here!
